DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Edwards et al(2002/0054005A1).

Edwards et al disclose a method driving a liquid crystal display device comprising a data bus(26, 27), a row buffer(21, 25) and a switch network(31A, 31B, 31C) coupled to the row buffer which are function as claimed.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2-8 and 11-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Edwards et al in view of Janssen et al(2002/0135557A1).

Edwards et al is discussed above. Janssen et al is cited to show that the concept of connecting a switching device(74) to adjacent respective pair of column lines(80A, 80B) of an LCD(figure 3) and wherein a first column of the pair of column lines is coupled to alternating pixels of the first column-line is old. Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the LCD system of Edwards et al with the above noted teachings of Janssen et al such that a switching device would be coupled to an adjacent respective pair of column lines of the LCD and wherein the first column of the pair of column lines is coupled to alternating pixels of the first column because both references are directed to column driving of an LCD display device with digital video signals and reduction of column capacitances.

In claims 3-6 and 12-15, as to the limitations "at least three MOSFETs of n-channels or p-channels or a combination of n-channel and p-channel are also shown to old by Edwards et al(see [0024] and [0025]).

In claims 8 and 17, as to the limitation "the pixels are arranged in a rectangular layout for a black and white display, such is also true in the system of Edwards et al(see figure 1).

5. Claims 9 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Edwards et al and Janssen et al as applied to claims 7 and 16 above, and further in view of Hashimoto(5,619,225).

Edwards et al and Janssen et al are discussed above. Hashimoto is cited to show the concept of utilizing a delta layout pixels arrangement is old(see figures 5 and 10). Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to apply the noted teachings of Hashimoto to the modified system of a Edwards et al in order to provide a delta layout pixels arrangement because it desirable to drive a color LCD panel and further because the delta layout pixels arrangement is a conventional layout arrangement for color LCD panels.

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Ayres et al and Stroomer are made of record to show various types of LCD panels having delta layout pixels arrangement and/or driving of an LCD panel without utilizing DACs and amplifiers.
